

Janie Walters Champion Communications

Janie Walters is an award-winning human communications specialist. She's a master teacher with more than 25 years experience teaching interpersonal communications, public speaking, debate, and theatre at the high school and college levels.

Janie is currently a professional speaker and corporate trainer, performing in 43 different states for more than 1,000 national, state, and local conferences, including such clients as the Federally Employed Women's National Training Program, the National Kidney Foundation, the Corps of Engineers, the Federal Bureau of Investigation – Chicago Office, and the National Security Agency.

She is member of the National Speakers Association, the past president of the Mississippi Theatre Association, and is listed in Who's Who Among America's Teachers 2000.

Janie is the author of three books:

---The Garbage Truck Comes On Tuesdays And Fridays,

---Blow A Bubble Not A Gasket: 101 Ways To Reduce Stress And Add Fun To Your Life,

---and a devotional book entitled Develop the Habit of Joy.

Janie is the founder and CEO of Champion Communications, a full-service speaker and training business based in Madison, Mississippi. She may be contacted for speaking engagements by email at joyfullyjanie@aol.com or by phone at 601-607-2979.

We are excited to have Janie with us on Thursday, March 2, at 9:00 am.